Hello
my name is

Edward

Edward is now less than a year old. A few months ago, Edward was found in a dumpster, left there by his parents. Since his parents were now facing incarceration, Children's Protective Services was called. They hoped to place Edward with a relative. Unfortunately, his grandmother had died from cancer, so her sister, Edward's great-aunt decided to step in. She agreed to raise him in tribute to her sister's memory. She sought out help and found it at one of the United Way partner agencies, Early Learning Centers.

Little Edward is a very good baby and is dearly loved by all of his teachers and his great aunt. He is one of those children who you can't help but give your heart to when you see his smile. He is bright, happy and is developmentally on target in every way. With the Early Learning Center teachers and his great aunt working together, he has a bright future.

His great aunt is very pleased that with United Way's support of Early Learning Centers, Edward will have a quality education, security and love during his formative years.
